making chicago the safest big city in america

[ message from the superintendent ]

I remain committed to making Chicago the safest big city in America, and we remain firmly on that path. Last year, index (serious) crime declined by 3.7 percent compared to the previous year, which meant fewer victims of crime in Chicago. Murders in 2004 decreased by 25.2 percent compared to the previous year, reaching a 38-year low, a fact about which I am especially proud. I attribute much of this success to our major emphasis on reducing gang-related crime and the innovative strategies we have put in place to accomplish this. Our use of intelligence to rapidly deploy resources to high-crime areas means we can often prevent crime before it happens. More resources mean more officers in targeted areas doing more things. Our officers are making more traffic stops, stopping vehicles that match those used in recent shootings, and looking for stolen cars, which are often used in drive-by shootings.

Some of our other successful strategies include targeting open air drug markets, disrupting gang activity, and recovering more illegal firearms. Our efforts are paying off handsomely.

We are proud of our successes in 2004, but there is still too much crime in many of our communities. That is why we must work even harder in 2005 to make every community safer. We must continue to be flexible, innovative, and proactive so we can do a better job of preventing crime instead of merely responding to it.

We must also recognize that innovative policing strategies will not succeed unless they are backed by the trust and partnership of the community. Key to building trust and strengthening the partnership is delivering a strong message that racial profiling and bias-based policing are unacceptable practices. This message needs to be delivered to officers through tough policy, strict accountability, diverse hiring, and constant training. The message also needs to go out to those we serve that we do not practice any form of biased-based policing. We are taking a number of steps to make sure our policy against biased-based policing is clear and that it is being followed throughout the Department. These include:

- Continuing community outreach to raise awareness of the Office of Professional Standards (OPS)/Internal Affairs Division (IAD) complaint process to encourage individuals who feel they were wrongly stopped by the police to file a complaint so it can be fully investigated.
- Reviewing our in-service training curriculum on biased-based policing and refreshing our training efforts regarding vehicle stops and searches.
- Working with an outside consultant to conduct a full review of the Department's policy on biased-based policing to ensure it is current and state of the art.
- Having command staff members continue to reinforce the Department's policy on racial profiling with supervisors and field officers.

The combination of innovative, effective policing strategies, implemented in a manner which respects the diversity of our residents, is a recipe for success. But one more ingredient is needed: your active involvement and participation. We hope you will join our fight against crime by attending your local beat community meetings, where you can work with your neighbors and the police on neighborhood crime and disorder problems. The community policing office of your local district can give you information about beat community meetings and other, exciting CAPS programs that help your community.

total index crime, 1995-2004

Reported index crime declined consistently in the ten years from 1995 through 2004. The overall decline was 32.9 percent or 3.36 percent per year on a compound annual basis. Between 2003 and 2004 the decrease was 3.7 percent.

about index crime

Since 1930, the FBI has collected and compiled data to use in understanding and improving law enforcement administration, operations, management, and to indicate fluctuations in the level of crime in America. Index crimes are the combination of eight categories of crime, selected because of their seriousness and frequency of occurrence. The index offenses are listed below.

violent crime:
murder.	the willful killing of a person or death through the criminal act of another.
criminal sexual assault.	broader than the traditional definition of “rape” (the carnal knowledge of a female, forcibly and against her will), this category includes any sexual assault—completed or attempted, aggravated or non-aggravated—committed against any victim, female or male.
robbery.	the taking of or attempting to take anything of value from the care or custody of a person, by force or threat of force.
aggravated assault/battery.	the intentional causing of serious bodily harm or attempt to cause serious bodily harm, or threat of serious bodily injury or death. This category includes aggravated assault, aggravated battery, and attempted murder.
property crime:
burglary.	the unlawful entry of a structure to commit a felony or theft, or an attempt to do so.
theft.	the unlawful taking or attempted taking of property or articles without the use of force, violence, or fraud.
motor vehicle theft.	the unlawful taking of or attempt to take a motor vehicle.
arson.	the willful or malicious burning or attempt to burn a house or other building, motor vehicle, aircraft, or personal property of another.

[ index crime ]

The overall decrease in index crime between 2003 and 2004 was reflected in each specific crime category. Three individual crime categories showed a substantially greater decrease than the overall decline of 3.7 percent: murder (25.2 percent), arson (18.2 percent) and robbery (8.2 percent). Property crimes outnumbered violent crimes by 3.9:1, a ratio slightly higher than in recent years. As in 2003, violent crimes declined at a faster rate than property crimes (7.0 percent vs. 2.9 percent), a reversal of recent trends.

violent crime vs. property crime

Violent index crimes are offenses with a high risk of injury or death to the victim, while property index crimes do not involve force and/or bodily harm. Violent crimes accounted for 20.6 percent of all 2004 index crimes reported in Chicago, while property crimes accounted for 79.4 percent. These are close to the figures of recent years, although they reflect a slightly greater proportion of property crimes and a smaller proportion of violent crimes. In 2002, for example, the percentages were 23.7, violent crimes, and 76.3 percent, property crimes.

Three categories accounted for almost all (94.1 percent) of the 2004 violent crimes: robbery (43.2 percent), aggravated battery (31.2 percent) and aggravated assault (19.7 percent). Murder represented 1.2 percent of violent crimes, close to the 1.5 percent in 2003. Among property crimes, theft was the leading offense, with 66.2 percent of the reported total, virtually identical to the 66.5 percent in 2003. Theft, in fact, retained its status as the most frequent index crime, accounting for more than half (52.5 percent) of all reported incidents in 2004.

index crime victims

Males were substantially more likely to be victims of violent index crime than females (63.4 percent vs. 36.6 percent) and somewhat more likely to be the victims of property crime (51.9 percent vs. 48.1 percent). Two gender differences were striking in regard to violent crime: the overwhelming majority (87.5 percent) of homicide victims were male, while the overwhelming majority of criminal sexual assault victims (90.2 percent) were female.

African Americans were the most frequent victims of both violent and property index crimes in 2004, although they were a larger percentage of violent crime victims (65.3 percent) than property crime victims (44.2 percent). Hispanics (18.1 percent) and Caucasians (14.8 percent) were the next-most frequent victims of violent crime, both at considerably lower levels. Caucasians ranked second as victims of property crime, at 34.3 percent.

The percentage of cases cleared in 2004 was 19.2 percent, the same as in 2003. This figure is slightly lower than the combined percentage for the previous five years, which was 20.9 percent. As noted elsewhere in this report, theft accounted for more than half of all index offenses, and the overall clearance rate was therefore driven by the rate for theft.

On average, violent crimes were twice as likely to be cleared as property crimes (35.0 percent vs. 15.1 percent). This ratio is typical of recent years. Aggravated assault had the highest clearance rate at 57.2 percent, while burglary had the lowest, at 9.3 percent.

Data taken from 2003 Annual Report.

* Includes both the actual offense and attempts to commit that offense.

** Includes incidents that were cleared when the offender(s) is arrested, charged, and prosecuted and those cleared exceptionally. Incidents are cleared exceptionally when an offender has been identified, there is enough evidence to arrest, charge, and prosecute the offender; and the offender's location is known so that he/she can be taken into custody, but circumstances outside the control of the police department have prevented the arrest, charging, and/or prosecution of an offender (Federal Bureau of Investigations, 2004).

Note: The numbers reported for case clearances may be lower than the actual number of clearances for the offenses in a given year. This is due to the fact that a case clearance may occur during the year in which the offense was committed or in a subsequent year. The clearance then becomes recorded in the year in which the crime occurred. For comparative purposes, the case clearance data in Exhibit 5b. match the numbers reported in the CPD 2003 Annual Report and do not reflect any clearances to those cases which may have occurred in 2004.

Violent crimes declined steadily from 1995 through 2004, at a compound annual rate of 6.35 percent. The 36,780 violent crimes in 2004 represent a ten-year decline of 44.6 percent from 66,418 in 1995. As with property index crimes, individual crime categories varied in their percent decrease between 1995 and 2004: robbery, 47.3 percent; murder, 45.9 percent; aggravated assault/battery, 42.7 percent; criminal sexual assault, 38.2 percent. Aggravated assault/battery declined every year during the reporting period. Each of the other categories had an increase in one year of the reporting period, against an overall pattern of decline.

With the exception of 1996-1997, when they were essentially stable, property crimes declined steadily between 1995 and 2004. The compound, annual rate of decrease was 3.79 percent. The 141,754 property crimes reported in 2004 represent a decline of 29.0 percent from the 199,546 offenses in 1995. This decrease is 15.6 percentage points less than the decrease in violent index crimes over the same period.

Individual crime categories varied in their percent decrease between 1995 and 2004: arson, 47.3 percent; burglary, 39.3 percent; motor vehicle theft, 37.1 percent; theft, 22.9 percent. Except for motor vehicle theft, no category declined every year during the reporting period. All of the other categories had plateaus and increases against an overall pattern of decline.

Murders decreased by 25.2 percent between 2003 and 2004. Of the 2004 murders whose cause has been determined, 42.0 percent arose from gang activity, while 25.7 percent arose from altercations which were not gang-related. Robbery (11.3 percent) and other (10.5 percent) were the only other motives which accounted for more than 10 percent of murders of known cause.

As compared to 2003, there was a slight increase in the proportion of offenders under 21 years of age (from 35.9 percent to 37.5 percent) and a decrease in those between 21 and 30 (from 43.7 percent to 39.6 percent). In both years, however, approximately four out of five murder offenders were age 30 and under.

On average, murder victims were older than murder offenders. While the median victim's age was 26 in 2004, the median offender's age was 23. From another perspective, persons over 30 were 37.3 percent of the victim population, while they were 22.8 percent of the offender population.

exhibit 9a. firearms recoveries, 1995-2004

The 10,509 firearms recovered by Chicago police officers in 2004 is an increase of 4.7 percent over 2003, and a six-year high in the number of recoveries. Firearms were used in 75.4 percent of 2004 murders, a retrenchment from the 80.8 percent in 2003, and the reversal of a three-year trend in which the percentage of murders involving a firearm had reached a ten-year high.

exhibit 9b. murder offenses by weapon type, 1995-2004

* There was one murder in 2004 and one murder in 1999 in which the weapon type was unknown.

chicago community areas and map

The 77 Chicago Community Areas were defined cooperatively by the U.S. Census Bureau and the University of Chicago Department of Sociology following the 1920 Census. Although there have been substantial changes in population and infrastructure since then, the Community Areas remain the most widely-used geographic units by Chicago planning agencies, advocacy groups, and service providers.

Pages 18-19 contain index crimes by Community Area. In order to group data by Community Area, all index crimes were geo-coded based on the address of occurrence, plotted, and extracted, using a Community Area overlay map. As a result, the reader may note that the combined total by Community Area does not equal the actual total shown by police district.

The reader may use the map on the following page to help identify Community Areas.

chicago police districts

Chicago is divided into 25 police districts. Each police district has between 9 and 15 police beats, with a total of 281 beats throughout the City. It is at the beat level that the Department's strategy of police-community partnership and problem-solving is carried out.

Each police district is led by a district commander. In addition to uniformed beat and rapid response officers, each district has teams of civilian-dressed tactical and gang tactical officers. Each district also has a Community Policing Office which helps coordinate police-community partnership and problem-solving at the beat level and provides special services to senior citizens.

Districts are organized into large units called areas. Since 1992 there have been five police areas in Chicago, each commanded by an area deputy chief. For patrol-operational reasons, in 2001 the 1st and 18th Districts, which comprise Chicago's downtown, were placed under command of a deputy chief in an area referred to as the Central Control Group. In 2002, the boundary between the 1st and 21st Districts was moved to re-allocate service demand more efficiently. As a result, the area of the 1st District was increased, and the area of the 21st District decreased, by approximately one-third (.31) of a square mile.

The Bureau of Investigative Services continues to rely on the five area organization for the assignment of detectives and youth investigators, who follow up and investigate crimes occurring in the districts comprising the area.

arrests

Total arrests increased by 2.2 percent between 2003 and 2004. The 244,193 arrests in 2004 included 36,146 for index offenses (14.8 percent), 180,446 for non-index offenses (73.9 percent), and 27,601 on outstanding warrants (11.3 percent). Total index crime arrests decreased by 6.6 percent, with a range of 1.4 percent (arson) to 11.8 percent (motor vehicle theft) among the six individual categories which showed a decrease. In two index crime categories—robbery and aggravated assault/battery—the number of arrests was essentially stable between 2003 and 2004 (less than one percent increase each).

Total non-index crime arrests increased by 2.9 percent between 2003 and 2004, with a range of 1.2 percent (criminal sexual abuse) to 9.8 percent (prostitution) among the individual categories which showed an increase. Some non-index categories showed a decrease. The largest among these was in regard to manslaughter by negligence (46.4 percent) but the numbers involved were small. Other, noteworthy decreases were arrests for offenses against family and children (15.4 percent), forgery and counterfeiting (14.0 percent) and fraud (13.3 percent). Arrests for weapons violations and driving under the influence were essentially at their 2003 levels (less than one percent change each).

domestic violence

There were 215,884 domestic violence calls placed to the Office of Emergency Management and Communications in 2004, a 1.6 percent increase from 2003. There was variability with respect to individual call types. Domestic battery calls increased by 6.0 percent, calls regarding the violation of an order of protection decreased by 2.3 percent, and domestic disturbance calls remained at their 2003 level (0.2 percent increase). Almost three-quarters (70.7 percent) of the 2004 calls concerned a domestic disturbance, 26.8 percent concerned a domestic battery, and 2.5 percent concerned the violation of an order of protection. These figures are typical of recent years.

The number of domestic violence calls per 1,000 residents varied by a factor of 12.5 among the districts, from 18.2 in the 19th District to 227.2 in the 7th District. Other, relatively high districts were the 11th (185.5), 3rd (161.7), 15th (159.9), and 2nd (155.3). Other, relatively low districts were the 16th (21.0), 23rd (23.5), 18th (28.1) and 17th (29.7). The Citywide rate was 74.5 calls per 1,000 residents.

The seven other categories in which 2004 arrests were made together accounted for 1.6 percent of the total.

Domestic-related homicides have shown a variable course over the last ten years, with four years of increase over the previous year, and five years of decline. The 2004 count of 23 is the lowest in the ten-year period, and a 47.7 percent decrease over 2003.

[ dispersal activity ]

Section 8-4-015 of the Municipal Code of Chicago directs the Superintendent of Police, in consultation with others inside and outside the Department, to identify areas of the City where gang loitering has enabled street gangs to establish control, intimidate others from entering those areas, or to conceal illegal activities. When a police officer observes one or more persons engaged in narcotics-related loitering in an area so designated, the officer informs such persons that they are engaged in loitering where such loitering is prohibited; orders such persons to disperse and remove themselves; and advises such persons they are subject to arrest if they fail to obey the order promptly or they engage in further, narcotics-related loitering at that location within the next three hours.

Roadside Safety Checks are one method used by the Department to enforce drunk driving and other traffic safety laws. The Department selects a site for a check based on factors such as past DUI arrest activity, the proximity of alcohol-related businesses, the frequency of traffic crashes, and other public safety considerations. Officers slow the traffic flow and stop cars at regular intervals, speak with drivers and watch for signs of alcohol use and other violations.

Saturation Patrols are similar in purpose to roadside safety checks, but involve roving patrols. Additional police vehicles are assigned to an area identified as a high accident location. Targeted offenses include speeding, unsafe vehicles, DUI and open alcoholic beverages, improper safety belt usage, and violations involving insurance, driver's licenses, license plates, and City stickers.

* As of 2002, Unit 079 is in charge of all sex investigations involving children 13 years of age or younger.

The number of investigations conducted by the Juvenile Advocacy Section decreased by 6.6 percent between 2003 and 2004. Among individual categories, the largest percentage of decreases were in dependent/neglect investigations (-26.5 percent), followed by child abduction-family related (-12.8 percent), sex offenses-family related (-12.3 percent), and situations reported through DCFS hotlines (-11.5 percent). Child abandonment investigations were the single category that increased. Although the increase was substantial in percentage terms (476.2 percent), it was based on small numbers.

Between 2003 and 2004, there was an overall decline of 17.9 percent in juveniles processed by the Department. This was largely driven by decreases in the number of juveniles processed for school absenteeism and curfew arrests, respectively. These two categories together accounted for almost three quarters (73.2 percent) of the juveniles processed by the Department in 2004, and almost all of the decrease (98.3 percent) between 2003 and 2004 among the specific categories that showed a decrease. Against the overall pattern of decline, there was an increase of 9.6 percent in the number of juveniles directed to Juvenile Court.

Station adjustments provide for follow-up assistance or counseling by a youth investigator or community agency.

** Status offenses are those which, if committed by an adult, would not be crimes. These include running away, truancy, and possession of cigarettes or alcohol.

[ hate crimes ]

Racial bias was the most common motive for hate crime in 2004, accounting for 52 reported incidents, or 42.6 percent of the total. African Americans were the most frequent victims of racially-motivated hate crimes (38, or 73.1 percent) followed, at a substantially lower level, by Caucasians (19.2 percent).

Hate crimes based on sexual orientation were the second most frequent category, with 34 incidents, or 27.9 percent of the reported total. Almost all of these were crimes against gay men (32, or 94.1 percent).

[administration]

Chicago has the nation's second largest police department, serving approximately 2.9 million residents in an area of 228.5 square miles. The Department had 15,675 employees at the end of 2004, including 13,423 sworn police officers.

Office of the Superintendent

The Department is led by the Superintendent of Police, who is appointed by the Mayor. In addition to overall Department management, the Office of the Superintendent is responsible for critical functions such as education and training, legal affairs, media relations, development of crime strategies, evaluation of management activities and operations, and internal investigations. The Superintendent manages five bureaus, each of which is commanded by a Deputy Superintendent. Within each of these major operating units are various divisions, groups, sections, and units that carry out the Department's operational, training, investigative, staff support, and administrative activities. An organization chart of the Department's five bureaus and their major respective units appears on page 38.

Bureau of Operational Services

The Bureau of Operational Services includes the Patrol Division, and thus, the vast majority of uniformed patrol officers and other district law enforcement personnel. It serves as the Department's command center when there is a general deployment of officers in response to an emergency or special event. The Bureau is responsible for controlling and preventing crime through regular beat patrols, answering calls for service, apprehending offenders, investigating major traffic accidents which result in death or serious injury, crowd control at public events, enforcing criminal and traffic laws, and working with the community to solve neighborhood crime problems. Commanded by the First Deputy Superintendent, the Bureau also includes specialized patrol units in the areas of airport law enforcement, public housing, public transportation, and the protection of dignitaries. Within this Bureau are also the marine, mounted, and canine units.

Bureau of Investigative Services

The Bureau of Investigative Services is responsible for the follow-up investigation of crime and the apprehension of offenders. There are two major divisions within the Bureau:

the Detective Division and the Organized Crime Division. The Detective Division is responsible for the investigation of felonies, selected misdemeanors, missing persons, and unidentified, deceased persons; the processing of juvenile offenders and the care of juveniles in need of protective services; the response to, and investigation of, bomb and arson incidents; and the collection and processing of forensic evidence. The Organized Crime Division addresses large-scale narcotics activities; vice crimes such as gambling, prostitution, and the distribution of obscene matter; the infiltration of organized crime into legitimate business activities; and gang-related crime.

Bureau of Staff Services

The Bureau of Staff Services coordinates and directs Department activities relating to preventive programs and police-community relations, labor relations, chaplain services, counseling and referral services for Department members and their families, Department vehicles, non-Department vehicles in Department custody, processing and distribution of mail and documents, inventoried evidence and recovered property, and telephonic incident reporting from the public.

Bureau of Crime Strategy and Accountability

The Bureau of Crime Strategy and Accountability is responsible for assessing crime strategies implemented by the Department and determining the effectiveness of those strategies. The Bureau also identifies emerging crime problems requiring additional Department resources; monitors the development and application of the Chicago Alternate Policing Strategy (CAPS); makes recommendations about the effective deployment of field units and monitors that deployment; and conducts audits and inspections to determine compliance with Department policy.

Bureau of Administrative Services

The Bureau of Administrative Services is responsible for coordinating and directing Department activities relating to budget and fiscal control; personnel administration; research, analysis, and data collection; grants administration; information services; records and facilities management; and statistical crime analysis. Additionally, the Bureau maintains the Department web-site and publishes key Department reports.

allegations of misconduct

Allegations of misconduct by Department members are investigated by the Internal Affairs Division (IAD) or, in the case of complaints alleging excessive force or off-duty domestic disputes, by the Office of Professional Standards (OPS). A Complaint Register (CR) number is issued whenever a complaint is received. Each complaint is investigated and a determination is made as to whether there is sufficient evidence to sustain the allegation and take disciplinary action.

attacks against the police

There were 2,879 assaults/batteries committed against Chicago police officers in 2004, up by 32.0 percent from the 2,181 incidents in 2003. On average, each district had 115 incidents in 2004, but the number varied from 39 to 295 per district. An attack on a police officer was most likely to occur during an officer's regular duties (95.6 percent), as opposed to special employment or being off duty; while the officer was in uniform (73.8 percent); outdoors (69.7 percent); and while working with a partner (67.0 percent). There was less consistency in the type of location where the battery occurred, the time of day and day of the week when the battery occurred, or the officer's activity at the time of the attack.

The officer sustained an injury 46.5 percent of the time. The number of officers who sustained a non-fatal, major injury as the result of an attack remained stable from 2003 to 2004 (48 officers in 2003, 49 officers in 2004). The average age of a battered officer in 2004 was 36, as compared to 41 for all Chicago police officers. Over half (54.5) of the officers attacked had five or fewer years of experience. The average age of the known battery offender was 28, as compared to 29 for all arrested offenders.

education and training

The Education and Training Division trained eight recruit classes in 2004, graduating 397 recruits for the Chicago Police Department. This compares to seven classes and 430 recruits in 2003. The number of recruits graduated in 2004 is a decrease of 7.7 percent from the number in 2003.

Chicago recruits presently receive 1,015 hours of training and instruction in the Academy, followed by a ten-week field training and evaluation program. Recruits are on probation until they reach their 18-month service anniversary.

In addition to recruits for the Chicago Police Department, the Education and Training Division trained 97 recruits, in three classes, for suburban police agencies. This is approximately the same number as in 2003 (99). Each year, all sworn personnel are required to pass a State of Illinois course of fire with their duty weapon and optional duty weapon, if applicable. Firearms training and qualification are conducted at each of the five Area Headquarters firing ranges and at the Training Academy.
